

As part of the Graduate School's "Building Graduate Communities Initiative" the Program in Public Health presents:

Social Inequalities in Suicide

Presented by Dr. Sean Clouston

Dr. Clouston is an Assistant Professor of Preventive Medicine and Core faculty in Stony Brook University's Program in Public Health. His research broadly examines how social inequalities in health emerge over the life course. He has written on the connection between social inequalities and cancer, suicide, health, and aging. Currently his research focuses on examining the influence of socioeconomic factors over the life course as determinants of cognitive and physical aging and diseases later in life. Dr. Clouston's work is funded by the NIA (P01 AG043362).

Thursday, November 13th 4:00PM, HSC Level 2 Room 408
(SHTM Large Conference Room).
